

MED LIFE

MOBILE CLINIC

Service Learning Trip

A Service Learning Trip is a week-long educational journey to Peru, Ecuador, or Tanzania, where volunteers work hand in hand with the local community on development projects and mobile medical clinics. The trip allows volunteers to understand the realities of extreme poverty first hand, personally connects them with the communities that MEDLIFE supports, and ignites action within them to join the MEDLIFE Movement in the fight for a world free from the constraints of poverty.

Why join a MEDLIFE Mobile Clinic?

Engage: Shadow local medical professionals and work alongside community members on a development project.

Learn: Connect experiences from the field to academic themes through educational discussions.

Advocate: Become a global citizen and learn how to advocate for social issues, both locally and abroad.

Travel: Explore the culture and history of your destination through optional educational travel adventures
